THE Present State of Christendome,
A N D
The Interest of England, &c.

SIR,

You gave me a Brief, and a Pertinent Deduction the other day, of the French Practices, and Designs; the Progresse of their Arms, and the Methods of their Proceedings: Together with a Scheme of the Inevitable Ruine, and slavery, that threatens Europe, without a speedy, and a powerfull Conjunction, against them. After this General Contemplation of the present State of Christendome; you were pleased to take a particular Prospe&t of the Interest of this Nation; and how far we are to reckon our selves concerned in the Common Calamity: Coming at last, to this Conclusion, that England cannot Reasonably expect to stand long, after the Loss of Holland, and Flanders. For the support of this Opinion, (besides the Force of your own Reasoning) you referr'd me to several Historical, and Political Treatises upon the subject; which I have diligently examin'd, and made Use of, in this following Discourse: wherein I take the Freedom to give you my Thoughts upon the whole Matter.

Your

Your first Charge upon the French, was, Breach of Faith : and you pitch'd upon the Cases of Spain, and Portugal ; the barbarous usage of the Duke of Lorain ; and the Nulling of the most Christian Queens Renuntiation upon Marriage ; (which was the very foundation of the Pyrenean Treaty) by a pretended Devolution of the Spanish Netherlands, in the Right of that Match : Their underhand tampering of Denmark, and Svede, to draw the One from us, and hinder the Other from joyning with us ; the Influence they had upon our Dilgrace at Chatham ; Their playing Booty on both sides, betwixt England, and Holland, in the Dutch-war : And to these Instances, (which are all so notorious that they need no expounding) you might have added a thousand more of the like Quality. But these may suffice for a seasonable, and a Necessary Caution, and without the Helps of Aggravation, and Clamour ; Especially that Extraordinary Action of destroying the Queens Renunciation, and then invading the Spanish Netherlands upon it : An Action, hardly to be paralell'd in the Story of the whole World, for a Concurrence of so many Enormous Circumstances. There was in it, the Publique Faith of the two Crowns ; which is the only Security of Government, and the Bond of Humane Society : There was in it the Solemnity of an Oath at the very Altar ; which is the most Sacred Tye of a Christian : There was also the highest Profession, and Assurance of Friendship imaginable ; which is accompted one of the most Binding Obligations betwixt Man and Man : And then there was a Brother, a Cousin, and an Infant fant, in the Case ; which makes it Matter of Humanity, and Honour. And yet all these Cord$ were as easily broken as Bulrushes. This single President may serve, however, for a warning to all Princes, and States, not to leave themselves at the mercy of men of such Principles. But His most Christian Majesty is not the only Prince that has been abused by Corrupt, and Ambitious Ministers.

Your next Observation was, that they are the greatest Intermeddlers in the World, in other peoples Affairs ; that they embroyl all whereever they come ; and that there's hardly any Rebellion, but they are in the Bottom of it. For their Mony walks in all the Courts, and Councils of Christendomes ; nay, and beyond it too ; For 'tis said, that the last Grana Vifir was their Pentioner. Was it not France, that debauch'd Scotland first ; and afterwards, England, into the Late Rebellion ? Nay, did they not stand still, and look on, to see the Crowning of the work which they themselves began, in the Execrable Murther of the Late King ? And did they not refuse to our Gracious and persecuted Sovereign that now is, even a Retreat in their Dominions ? How did they prolong the War in Portugal ? What Havock have they made in Poland, and what work in Hungary ? And are they not at this day, in Counsel with the Port against the Empire ; and Undermining the Bullwark of Christendome ? How have they dash'd England against Holland ; blinded the Eyes of several Princes of the Empire ; and baffled all Mediations toward a General Peace ? Did they not formerly, under the Colour of Protecting Germa- ny , cut off Alsatia from the Empire ? And in a word ; this has been their Practice wheresoever they have come : They Covet Harbours in Spain, (says the Admirable Baron del' Isola) Leagues in the Empire ; Factions in Poland ; Wars in England, and Holland ; Passes into Italy ; and the Sovereign Arbitrage every where. Their Quiet consists in the Trouble of all others , and their Advantage is in the Publique Calamities. Nor have they any other way, then by dividing , and weakening of the Parts , to master the whole, which is the Capital designe. And if so, There's no Fence against a Common Enemy, but a Common Union .

It is already made appear, by what is above said, how dangerous they are to Mankind. The next hint you gave me , was to consider on't, whether the English may reasonably expect any better Quarter from them, then other People : in which point, I shall only lay the Matter before you , and leave you the judge on't.

The Four main Interests of a Nation, are, Religion, Reputation, Peace, and Trade. For the first of these ; we shall neither fare the better , nor the worse : but lose just as much for being of Another Communion, as his Catholique Majesty gets by being of the same. The Question now on Foot is a Communion of State, not of Faith. The Alcoran , and the Gospel go hand in hand ; and at the same time, the Protestants are protected in Hungary and persecuted in France. To say nothing of the Encouragements they give there to the Fanatics , which may may, for ought we know, prove the greatest Blow to the Church of Rome that ever it received since the Reformation. But what do I talk of Religion, in a Cause that is dipp'd in Christian Blood, and in the Tears of Widows, and Orphans? A Cause that is propagated by Sacrilege, Rapes, Depopulation, Slavery, Oppression; and at least a Million of Lives sacrificed to it already? The very thought of it is enough to strike the Soul of any man with horrour and Indignation.

If you would see now how tenderly they have handled us in the Business of Reputation: Pray do but cast an Eye upon the Character of an English man in their Politique de France.

Quant à ce qui est des Anglois, ils n'ont aucun amis, ce sont des gens sans Foy, sans Religion, sans Probité, sans Justice aucune, desians, legers au dernier point, Cruels, Impatiens, gourmands, superbes, audacieux, avares, propres pour les coups de main, et pour une prompte execution, mais incapables de conduire une Guerre avec jugement. Leur Pais est assez bon pour vivre, mais il n'est pas assez riche pour leur fournir les moyens de sortir, et de faire aucune conqueste : aussi n'ont ils jamais rien conquis, excepte L'Irlande, dont les habitans sont foibles, et mauvais Soldats, &c. i. e. As for the English, they are a People without Friends, without Faith, Religion, Honesty, or Justice; Distrustful, and fickle to the highest degree imaginable: Cruel, Impatient, Gluttonous, Proud, Audacious; they will do well enough for a Rubber at Cuffs, or a sudden Exploit, but they understand nothing at all of the Government of a War. The Country is passable enough for them to live in; but not Rich enough to offer at any Conquest abroad ; nor did they ever make any, but upon the Irish, which are a weakly people, and Ill Souldiers.

I think it were not amiss in this Place, to desire our Impertinent Undertaker to turn back to the History of Philip de Valois, and he shall there finde that our Edward the third made a shift with one Army to beat 60000 French, and leave betwixt thirty, and forty thousand of them upon the Place ; and with another Army in the Bishoprick of Durham to defeat as many Scots, and cut off fifteen thousand of them too. And it must not here be omitted, that this Scotch Army was also animated by French, Counsels. I would not willingly run out a Letter into a Volume, so that all other Reflections apart, I shall only add, that if the English had not once recovered the Field, and another time made it good in two of the greatest Actions of late that have yet passed betwixt the Imperialists, and the French, 'tis the Opinion of wise men, that the latter would not have had much to brag of upon the success of this War. And this in some degree is acknowledg'd by the Authour of a French Relation of the Actions betwixt the two Armies in 1675, 1676, and 1677, (How Romantical soever in other Cases). Speaking of the Battle under the command of the Count de Lorge, after the Death of the Vicount Turenne, these are his words. Et à rendre justice aux Anglois, et aux Irlandois, on peut dire, qu'on leur doit une bosse partie de cette victoire ; That is to say, And to give the English, and Irish their due, France is indebted to them in a large measure for this Victory. But now to our Polititian again.

again. Ils se haissent les uns, les autres, et sont en division continue, soit pour la Religion, soit pour le Gouvernement. The English, says he, hate one another, and are still quarrelling, either about Religion, or Government.

These Indelicacies would almost make a man call them Names ; but let us passe without one Angry word, from the Interest of our Reputation, to that of our Peace. And enquire how they stand affected to us upon that point. To say, that England has not for a long time had any troubles either at home, or abroad, which the French have not either promoted, or improv'd to their own Advantage ; is to say no more then that they deal with us, as they do with all the World beside ; So that we must e'en have Recourse again to their Politiques for some particular Mark of their Favour, where you shall finde that our State Mountebank has not yet shown all his Tricks, but puts himself with a very grave and fore-casting Countenance upon the very Project of our Ruine. Une Guerre de France de trois, ou quatre ans contre eux les ruineria entierement, ainsi il semble q' il ne faut point faire de paix avec eux qu à des Conditions qui nous soient tres avantageuses. A War (says he) of three or four years with France, would absolutely destroy the English ; so that methinks we shoud not entertain any Peace with them, but upon very profitable Terms. And then a little after. In fine, says he, the way to undo the English, is to make them keep an Army on foot ; and there's no fear of their Landing in France, but to their Certain destruction, unless they shoud be invited by a Rebellion ;

bellion ; without which, their Troops will in a short time most undoubtedly fall foul one upon another. To keep them upon Continual Expence , 'tis but giving them the Alarm upon the Isles of Jersey, and Gernsey, Wight, and Man, Ireland, and the Cinque-Ports ; by which means, they will be put upon the Charge of Fortifications and Garrisons, which will perswade the People that the King inten'd to set up a standing Army, and an Arbitrary Government. So long as this holds, the Nation will never be at quiet, but torment themselves with fears, and Fealoufyes, which may be easily fomented by letters in Cipher, to such or such particular Persons ; and in such sort to be intercepted as shall be found Convenient. These Letters may give a Hint of a Descent in Ireland, and elsewhere, which would dispose the Irish, who mortally hate the English, to a Revolt ; and among the suspicous Multitude they would passe for Gospell. This Contrivance would make the Scots also to bethink themselves of recovering their Liberty ; where there must be Partyes made, and the sects encourag'd one against another ; especially the Roman Catholiques, must be fairly handl'd, and private Assurance given (in the Name of the King of England) to the Benedictins, (who are easy enough, to be impos'd upon) that they shall be restor'd to all their former Benefits, according to the Printed Monasticon ; which will presently make the Roman Catholiques declare themselves ; and the Monks will move Heaven, and Earth for the bringing of Matters about : But then Care must be taken to carry on the Report that the King is of the Romish Religion ; which will distract the Government, and throw all into an absolute Confusion.

From hence we may gather ; first, what Opinion the French have of us : Secondly , that it is not only their desire , and study, but a formed design to embroyl us. Thirdly, that they will stick at Nothing neither, to compasse that end ; be it never so foul : Fourthly, this Libeller has trac'd us out the very Methods of their working : As by amusing the People with forged Letters of Intelligence, where the first Authour of the Plot must miraculously discover it : By filling the Peoples heads with fears and Jealousyes , and leaving no stone unturn'd in England , Scotland , and Ireland , to stir up a Rebellion : by making use of the Kings Name in pretended Commissions to Papists , in favour of their Religion, and artificially insinuating that his Majesty is of that Perswasion , to make him odious to his Subjects ; by first putting the King upon the Necessity of an Army, for the securing of his Dominions ; and then interpreting the Effect of that Necesity, for an attempt upon the Liberty of his People. Why has he not advis'd the Poisoning of all our Fountains too ? which would have been a Course of as much Christianity, and Honour. But that this Trifler may not glorify himself too much in his wondrous Speculations , take Notice , that he is only the Transcriber, not the Authour of this goodly Piece , for the Original was betwixt Richelieu , and Mazarine ; and it amounts to no more in effect, then an imperfect History of the French Dealings with us for a long time, and particularly in our Late Troubles.

To come now from his most Unmannerly Malice , to his Reason of State , If I am not mistaken, England might longer subsist in a War with France, then France could in a Peace within it self (the heaviest of all Jndgments , when a Nation must be wicked upon Necessity :) And again ; when he says that England cannot hurt France by a Descent, unless call'd in by a Rebellion ; he never considers that if England had an Army a foot, and stood inclin'd to make use of it that way, we should not be long without an Invitation. For we see What the Bourdeois, &c. did upon their own Bottome , and without any forreign Encouragement ; and the whole Busyneſſ miscarry'd only for want of a vigorous Second. Lastly ; give me leave to say that he has extremely overshot himself in one thing more ; for though this has been really the Practice of the French, and is at this day the very Modell and Rule by which their Emissaryes govern themselves ; it should yet have been kept as the greatest secret in the World : for the owning of these Inglorious Artifices in Publique , makes it one of the Grossest Libells that ever was written, against the French Government : to say nothing of his oversight in disobliging the Roman Catholiques, and laying snares to Trepan them.

A word now from their Counsels , and Instructiōns to their *Inſtrument*s, which will be best known by the Conformity of their Behaviour to the mode of their French Masters ; and it is no matter to us, in what shape they appear, nor is it much to themselves ; who are any thing for Profit, and the very

Materia Prima, is not susceptible of more Forms. Do the French put Tricks upon us with forged Letters? So do they. Do the French labour to poyson the People with Apprehensions that their Liberties are in danger, and their Religion; and that the King himself is Possibly affected? So do they. Do the French endeavour to create misunderstandings betwixt the King, and his People? So do they. Do the French Blow the Coal in England, Scotland, and Ireland; and when they have set all in a flame, roste their own Eggs at the fire? So do they. Do the French change their Party with their Interests? So do they. What can be plainer now then that the French Interest beats in the Pulse of these Incendiaries. And what can be more ridiculous then to be foold over and over by the same hand? But this is enough to lay open the source of our miseries.

The question of Trade has been so beaten already, that there remains Little to be added to it. Nor in truth needs it, since it is agreed at all hands, that the French set up for an Universal Commerce as well as for an Universal Monarchy. And in effect, the One is but a necessary consequent upon the other. Nor is it enough, it seems, for us to be design'd upon by them, without lending them our own hands towards the Cutting of our own Throats: For upon a sober and Fudicious Estimate, we are Losers by our Trade with France; at least a Million, and a half per Annum. I shall conclude this Head with one Passage more out of our Politiques of France. (and you'll say 'tis a pleasant one too, but it must be under the Rose) Upon a Presupposal of mischief that's a Brewing in England, Now says he, it will be our Business to renew an Alliance with Holland; we can wheedle them into an Opinion, that they are the only men that understand the knack of Trade, so that they shall have that to themselves, the Talent of the French, alas! lies another way, and there's no forcing of any thing against Nature: and that now's their nick of time, to crush their Competitours for the Northern Seas. So that we are all of us to be served with the same sauce; but 'tis some degree of Honesty yet, when they tell the world what they are to trust to.

Now to summe up all that's said. If the French can dispence with Oaths, and Solemn Contracts; If it be their Custome, and a branch of their Policy, to fish in troubl'd waters; If they hate us, as English men, and are not for us, as Reformed Catholiques; If they do all they can to wound us, in our Reputation, our Peace, and our Trade, we may take for granted that they will destroy us to all purposes if they can, which Naturally leads me to an Enquiry how far we are in their Power; or likely so to be; that we may take our measures accordingly.

It will not stand with the Brevity I propose in this Paper to give you a Geographical, or an Historical Accompt of Places, or Actions, But in as few words as I can, I am to present you with a general view of the present State of Christendome, with a Regard to the Power of France; and then to consider how far England may come to be concern'd in the Common Fate. Here it was that you and I brake off in our last Discourse; So that in the Prosecution of it, I must try to walk without Leading, Leading, (Saving only the helps that I have gather'd from certain Tracts which I have read, upon his Recommendation) wherein I shall steer a middle Course, betwixt some that overvalue the strength of France, and others that will have it to be lesse then indeed it is.

That the Armes of France are at this day formidable to all Christendome, is not to be deny'd, and Tacitus gives you the Reason of it, in the Case of the Romans, and the Brittains. Rarus (says he) ad propulsandum Commune Periculum conventus : ita, dum singuli pugnant, Universi vincuntur. There must be a Common Force to oppose a Common danger ; they struggl'd one by one, till they were all destroy'd. The French (no doubt of it,) are a wealthy, a Populous and a Military Nation. But it must yet be allow'd that they are more indebted for their Greatnesse, to the slips and oversights of others, (And this without disparagement too) then they are to their proper Conduct, and Valour. The Advance they made into Flanders in 1667. was introduced by the Spaniards trusting to their Assurances of Friendship, and rather imputable to an Excess of Charity then any want of Precaution ; though it seem'd not very likely that they should march with horse, Foot, and Cannon, only to go a Birding. Through these and the like Arts they have rais'd themselves to that dangerous height where now we behold them ; taking all Advantages of the unsettled Condition of Spain ; the divisions of the Empire, the Factions in Holland, and of all other mistakes in point of fore-sight, and Resolution elsewhere. You know very well, the Conquests they have made upon the United Provinces, the Spanish Netherlands; a Considerable part of Germany, with the Terrorr, and devastation that accompanies them every where : The Progresse of their Armes in Catalonia, Sicily, the West Indies, &c. Now what may be the Consequences of this over-growing Power, and how to prevent them, is the matter in Question.

A

A Short View of the Present State of Christendom.

AS it is without dispute, that the French Aim at Universal Dominion, (which is only a more plausible Cover for that Universal Slavery which must create it) so is it accompted as indubitable a Principle, that the Conquest of Flanders must be the Foundation of it. And according to this Maxim it is, that they take their Measures ; for they have made themselves Masters of the Outworks already, in Valenciennes, Cambray, and St. Omer ; three places of very great strength, and importance : And it is generally believ'd by the recalling of their Troops from the Rhine, and bending the flower of their Force that way, that they will push for the rest this Campania. If they carry it, (as probably they will, without the speedy addition of some Powerfull Alliance) take Notice I beseech you of that which Naturally follows. In the first place, the Charge and the Hazard of that War is over, which in Garrisons, and in the Field, has put his most Christian Majesty to the Expence of keeping near 100 000 Men in Pay : (which will then be at liberty to fall in upon the Empire.) Beside, what has been expended in Management, as the French call it, which in honest English is down-right Corruption. Secondly, This Acquisition will will furnish the French King with men , and monies, for an Army of fifty thousand men, (and no better Souldiers in Europe). Thirdly, what will become of the Duke of Brandenburg , if the French shall fall into Cleves, and Mark, with a matter of forty, or fifty thousand men more; and from thence into Pomeren, and Prussia ? Fourthly, the whole Patrimony of the Empire , from the Rhine to the Frontiers of France , fall by an inevitable Consequence into the hands of the French ; as they have already swallow'd the three Bishopricks of Metz, Taul, and Verdun. So that the Imperial Army will be forc'd over the Rhine, and there probably kept in Play, and upon the bare defensive, by the Troops of Bavaria , and other Princes of the French Interest ; while in the mean time, the Princes of Westphalia will be reduc'd to an absolute necessity of ranging themselves under the French Protection, and Changing their party. And what can be then expected from Holland , after what they have suffer'd already, and under their present despairs, but to content themselves with such Conditions as France will give them. For after the Loss of Cleves, and Flanders , their Case is wholly desperate, unless England should vigorously interpose to their Relief. And the State of the Empire is neither better nor worse then that of their Neighbours ; for they must all submit their Necks to the same Yoak. When Matters are brought to this Passe, they have before them , England , Spain, and Italy; the Cloud is gather'd already, and it is wholly at their Choyce where it shall break.

There

There are a great many people , I know , that promise themselves mighty things from the Event of another Campania , for want I fear of Consulting the Chart ; and the almost Insuperable difficultyes that lye in the way ; The means they propose , are either by carrying the War into France , by way of Revulsion , or by forcing the French upon a Capitall Battel ; The former Proposition seems first very impracticable ; and secondly , of little or no advantage , if it could be effected. It must be consider'd that beyond Mentz , Coblents , and Treves , the Imperialists have no Magazine at all beside that betwixt Treves and France (a part of Luxemburg excepted) is absolutely in the Enemies Power. Now how should an Army sub-sist there , that must over and above , passe through a Country of a about twenty Leagues , that is wholly layd wast , and in Ashes , and without any Cattle in it , or any other sort of Necessary provi-sion ?

Put the Case now that the Imperialists should break through all these difficulties , and carry an Army even into Lorain it self , The Country of Metzin , or Burgundy , (which would take them up the best part of a Summer too) all the strong-holds are in the hands of the French , and the Country laid so desolate , that there's no living for an Army there. When'tis come to this , they must resolve either upon a Battle , or a Siege . If the former ; The French are at liberty whether they will fight , or no , and there's no compelling of them ; for they are among their strong-holds ; and all's their their own both behinde them, and on Each Side, and the Country either burnt, or deserted. But carry it farther yet, and suppose the French forc'd upon the Risque of a Battle. First, The Imperialists are not sure to get the better of it. And Secondly, What if they should ? Nay to the degree of an Entire Victory ? All that would be expeded more for that year, would be only to take in some Considerable Post, and make good the ground they had gotten, for the next Campaign. For it would be a madness to pursue their Victory into the heart of an Enemies Countrey, and leave so many strong Garrisons upon their Backs, which would undoubtedly cut off all their Convoys, and Starve them.

But this is still the supposing of a Thing not to be supposed ; for the French in this Case, would stand upon the Defensive, and not to come to a Battle. Or in Case they should ; and be worsted ; they have men enough in Garrison for Recruits, that would immediately reinforce them.

Now on the other side, what if the Imperialists should chance to be routed ? The Garrisons which the French hold in Lorain, Burgundy, and Alsatia, would, in such a Case, totally destroy that broken Army, and cut out such work in Germany, as has not been known in the Empire for many Ages.

In this Extremity, let us suppose that the Empire should yet bring another Army into the Field ; and try the Iffue of a Second Battle. and miscarry : And that the Duke of Bavaria, with other disaffected Princes of the Empire, should declare themselves for the Enemy ; all that part of Germany that

that lyes within two, or three days journey of the Rhine, would be irrecoverably lost ; a great part of it being so harrassed already, that 'tis not able so much as to furnish an Army upon a March, much leſſe for a Winter quarter.

Now to the Businesſ of a Seige, the French have taught us, by Philipsburg, and Mastricht, that they want neither Skill to Fortify a Place, nor Courage to defend it. So that without a great losſe of Time, and Men, it cannot be expected that the Imperialiſts should make themselves Masters of any considerable place, And when they shall have carry'd it ; what will 'a Town in Lorain, or Burgundy, signify to the ſaving of the Spaniſh Netherlands, which, if once lost, are hardly ever to be retriv'd ?

Now taking this for granted ; if England does not ſtep in with all the speed and vigour imaginable, ſee what will be the end on't, First ; That the French, being Masters of all the Posts Passes and Strong-holds in Lorain, and Burgundy, may dodg, and trifle the Imperialiſts at pleasure ; and make them ſpend out the Year without any Advantage to the Netherlands. The way would have been for the Imperialiſts to have preſt with an Army of 50000 men direſtly into the body of France, and the Confederate Troops in the Low Countryes, to have made another Inrode by the way of Picardy, or Bologne ; but ſince the taking of Valenciennes, Cambray, and St. Omer, there's no poſſibility of pierc-ing France that way. So that a very ſmall Army now upon the Spaniſh Netherlands, with the help of the French Garriſons, is ſufficient to amuse, and tire tire out the whole force of Spain, and Holland, upon that Quarter.

Secondly, France being thus secur'd on that side will unquestionably fall in with all their Power upon the Empire; unless diverted by the Alarm they have now receiv'd from England. Now admitting this to be the Condition of France, let any man of sense judge, what good the Imperial Army can do to the Netherlands (upon which single poynt depends the Fortune of Christendom.) What if they should march up to the Borders of France with 50000 men? Will not the French encounter them there with as many, or more? And with this odds too, that the Imperialists suffer a thousand Incommodities in their March, through a ruin'd Country: whereas the French have good Quarters, and plenty of all things at hand, watching the Others motions, and emproving all Advantages against them.

Thirdly, In this posture of Affairs, the Confederates must never expect to do any great Matter upon the French, in these Provinces, unless they do very much out-Number them.

And it is likewise to be considered, that these troubles falling out in the Minority of his Catholique Majesty, the distractions of that Government, the Revolt of Sicily, and great disorders upon the Frontiers of Spain; the Netherlands have been much neglected, till the Elevation of his Highness Don Juan of Austria to the dignity of Prime Minister. And that it is not possible for him, by reason of the many Exigences of that Crown nearer home, to send any Considerable succour to the Low Countries, otherwise then by supplies of Money : So that by that time the Imperialists, and the Hollanders are got into their Winter-Quarters, or at least, before they take the Field again, the French from time to time will be ready with Fresh Troops out of their Garrisons to prosecute their Conquests ; which by degrees must needs break the hearts of the Poor Inhabitants, when they finde that neither their Faith, nor their Courage, is able any longer to prote&t them. And when that day comes ; what by their Armies, and what by other Influences, the French will have as good as Subjected two thirds of Europe. And there will also occur these farther difficulties. First, no body knows where the French will begin their Attaque ; which will oblige the Spaniard, and Hollander, to strengthen all their Garrisons as far as their men will reach. Secondly, when the Spanish, and Holland Troops shall be so dispers'd, wheresoever the French sit down, they must give themselves for lost, for want of an Army to relieve them ; beside their furious, and Obstinate manner of Assault, for they care not how many men they lose, so they carry the place. (And then most of the men too are made prisoners of War.) Nor is the season of the year any discouragement to them neither ; witness their first Irruption into Burgundy, and the restlesse Activity of their Troops even at this Instant.

So soon as their Work in Flanders is over, & which only England, under Heaven, is able to D Prevent

Prevent a Check) the French will have an Army of at least 50000 men about Lorain, Luxembourg, and Burgundy to face the Imperialists, and at the same time with as many more perhaps they will seize upon the Dutchy of Fluier, and of Cleves, and from thence passe the Rhine, to countenance those that are of the French Cahall, on the side of Westphalia; and so in due time, several other Princes of the Empire. It is remarkable that in a three years war against the Confederates, his most Christian Majesty has not only stood his ground, without losing so much as one Inch of his Ancient Patrimony, but actually and almost without opposition, taken several Towns, and some entire Provinces, from the Principalls of the Confederacy; And made himself almost as Considerable at Sea, as he is at Land; Not only in the Mediterranean, and upon the Coasts of Spain, and Italy, but in America too: where he has laid a Foundation of great mischief both to England, and Holland, in the point of Commerce; if not timely prevented. And he does little less by his money than by his Armes; for he pays all; supports the Swede, and with French money, under pretext of Neutrality, maintains considerable Armies in the very heart of the Empire; which 'tis feared, will be ready enough upon any disaster, to joyn with the Common Enemy. It is the French Court that manages the Counsells of Poland, and they govern the Swisse no less; who, by the Conquest of the Franche County are made little better then slaves. And yet by a fatall, and Besotted blindness, that Republique still furnishes the French with the best of their

their Soldiers, and helps forward the destruction of Europe, never dreaming that they themselves are to be undone too at last.

But it is no great matter, you'll say, to impose upon the Swisse (which are a heavy, and a Phlegmaticque people) but the French charms have bewitcht even Italy it self; though a Nation the most Clear-fighted, and suspiciois of all others. For their Republiques lye as quiet, as if they were asleep; though the Fire is already kindled in Sicily, and the danger brought home to their own doors. It is a wonder, that they lay things no more to heart, considering, first, the Passages that the French have to favour their Entry. Secondly, that they are many, and small States; weak, and easily to be corrupted, if not so already. Thirdly, That though they have been formerly very brave, and many Particulars remain so still, yet in the generality, they are soft, and Effeminate. And Fourthly, That the French is there the Master of the Seas. These Reflections methinks might convince any man of the Condition they are in. And certainly they that were not able to defend themselves against Charles the Eight, will be much leſſe able to encounter Lewis the 14th: Or if he gets in, to drive him out again, as they did the Other. For they must do it wholly upon their own Strength, having only the Turk in Condition to help them. For Germany, and Spain, are sunk already; And the Swisse will neither dare to venture upon't, nor are they able to do it if they had a minde to't.

As for Spain, it is neither Populous, nor for-tify'd, and perhaps want of Provisions may keep it from an Invasion. And yet for all that, with a Body of Thirty, or forty thousand Men by the way of Fontaraby, and as many by Catalonia, the French may (if they please) in two Campania's make themselves Masters of Navarre; Arragon, Catalonia, and Valentia: and then it is but fortifying the Frontiers, and making his Catholique Majesty a Tributary in Castile; Who must content himself to take what they please to give him, over and above, in Consideration of his Dominions in Italy, and the Spanish Indyes: A Possibility, that England, and Holland shall do well to think of: For when he has the Mines in his Power, and Europe under his Feet, there will be no contending.

After this, they have only the Swisse, or the English, to fall upon next: For the Former, they are neither fortify'd, nor United, in Affections, or Religion.

As for England; They are a People not naturally addited to the French; Sensible of their honour, and of their Interest; and the whole world is convinced of their Courage. They are United under the Government of a Gracious Prince; and their Concerns are at this Instant lodged in the hands of the Most Loyall, and Publique-spirited Representatives that ever acted in that Station; beside the strength of the Island by Scituation: So that the French would finde it a hard matter, either to make a Conquest here, or, if they should surprize it, to keep it. But yet they have finer ways to victory then by by force of Arms ; and their Gold has done them better service then their Iron.

What have we now to do then, but in a Common Cause, to arm against a Common Oppression. This is the Time, or never, for Italy to enter into a League for their Common safety ; and not only to keep, but, if possible, [to force the French from their Borders ; while the Imperial Army holds the Capital Power of France in Play ?

And this is the time too, for the Swiss to recall all their Troops out of the French service, and to Strike a general League also for the Recovery of Burgundy, the only Outwork of their Libertyes, and to expell the French Garrisons, and deliver the places into the hands of the Right Owners.

And will it not concern Poland, as much as any of the rest ; that stands, or falls with the Empire, as the Defence of Christendome against the Turks, and whose own Turn is next ?

This Alarm methinks should call off the Princes from the Acquisitions they have made upon part of the Swedes Possessions in the Empire, to the Assistance of the Spanish Netherlands ; and make all the French Mercenaries in the Empire to bethink themselves of returning from the delusions which either the French Artifice or Money has imposed upon them. He that has no regard for the Head, will have lesse for the Dependences, when he has them at his Mercy.

Nay the very French themselves should do well to contemplate the slavery that is now prepar'd for them.

them. Their Laws and Liberties are trampled upon; and till the French Government be reduc'd to the Bounds of its Ancient Constitution, neither the People, nor their Neighbours, can ever be secure.

In this dangerous Crisis of Affairs, it has pleas'd Divine Providence to leave England the Arbitress of the Fate of Europe; and to annex such advantages to the Office, that the Honour, the Duty, and the Security of this Nation seem to be wrapt up together. In the Point of Honour, what can be more Generous, than to succour the Miserable and the Oppress'd, and to put a stop to that Torrent that threatens christendome with an Universall Deluge? Beside the Vindication of our selves for those Affronts, and Indignityes, both Publique, and private, that we have suffer'd upon our own Accomp't. And then in matter of Duty; It is not only Christendom, but Christianity it self, that lyes at stake. For, in the Ruine of the Empire, the Turks work is done to his hand; by breaking down the only Fence that has preserv'd us all this while from the Incursions of the Ottoman Power. Now as nothing can be more Glorious, than at all hazzards, to hinder the Effusion of more Christian blood, and to save christendome it self from Bondage; It is so much our Interest too, that we our selves are Lost without it. And as the Obligation is Reciprocal, so the Resolution is Necessary: The choyce we have before us being only This, Either to Unite with our Neighbours, for a Common safety; or to stand still, and look on, the tame Spectatours of their Ruine, till we fall alone. This is is so Demonstrative, that if we do not by a powerfull Alliance, and diversion, prevent the Conquest of Flanders (which lyes already a Gaspings) we are cut off from all Communication with the Rest of Europe ; and coop'd up at home, to the Irrecoverable Losse of our Reputation, and Commerce ; for Holland must inevitably follow the Fate of Flanders, and then the French are Masters of the Sea ; Ravage our Plantations ; and infallibly possess themselves of the Spanish Indyes, and leave Us answerable for all those Calamityes that shall ensue upon it : which as yet, by God's providence, may be timely prevented. But he that stills the Raging of the Sea will undoubtedly set Bounds to this Overflowing Greatnesse ; having now, (as an Earnest of that Mercy) put it into the hearts of our Superiours to provide seasonably for the Common safety, and in proportion also to the Exigence of the Affayr ; knowing very well, that things of this Nature are not be done by Halves.

We have to do with a Nation of a Large Territory ; abounding in Men, and Mony ; and their Dominion is grown to Absolute, that no man there can call any thing his own, if the Court says Nay to't. So that the sober, and Industrious Part are only slaves to the Lusts, and Ambition of the Military. In this Condition of Servitude, they feel already what their Neighbours fear, and wish as well to any Opportunity, either of avoyding, or of Casting off the Yoak which will easily be given by a Conjunction of England, and Holland, at Sea : and almost infallibly produce these Effects. First ; It will draw off the Navall Force of France from Sicily, America, and elsewhere, to attend this Expedition. Secondly; The Diversion will be an Ease to the Empire, and the Confederates, from whence more Troops must be drawn to encounter this Difficulty, then the French can well spare. Thirdly; It will not only encourage those Princes, and States that are already engag'd, but likewise keep in Awe those that are disaffected, and Confirm those that waver.

'Tis true, this War must needs be prodigiously expensive; but then in Probability it will be short; And in Cases of this Quality, people must do as in a Storm at Sea, rather throw part of the Lading over-board, then Founder the Vessel. I do not speak This, as supposing any Difficulty in the Case, for the very contemplation of it has put fire into the veins of every true Englishman; and they are mov'd, as by a sacred Impulse, to the Necessary, and the only means of their Preservation. And that which Crowns our Hopes, is, that these Generous Inclinations are only ready to Execute what the wisdome of their Superiours shall finde Reasonable to Command. I need not tell you how jealous the People of England are of their Religion, and Liberties; to what degree they have contended, even for the shadow of these Interests; nor how much blood, and Treasure they have spent upon the Quarrel. Could an Imposture work so much; and can any man imagine that they will be now less sensible, when they see before their eyes a manifest Plot upon their Religion; their Liberties invaded; their Traffique interrupted; the Honour, and the very Being of their Countrey at stake; their Wives and Children expos'd to Beggary and Scorn; and in Conclusion, The Priviledges of a Free-born Englishman Exchang'd for the Vassalage of France?
